The Competency Framework for Governance

The Department for Education's Competency Framework for Governance sets out the competencies needed for effective governance and is applicable to all Boards in proportion to the scale and complexity of the organisation they are governing.

The framework begins with the principles and personal attributes which, alongside the commitment of time and energy to the role, underpin effective governance. Following on from this, the knowledge and skills required are identified as 16 competencies grouped under the headings of the six features of effective governance as set out in the Governance Handbook:

Our programme is designed to support the development of all of the competencies. In the module overviews we have identified which of the competencies each of the training modules will help you to develop.

We can also offer bespoke training for your Governing Board.

Induction training for those new to school governance

Effective induction training will give new Governors a better understanding of their role and responsibilities and the confidence to take a full and active part in Governing Boards discussions to improve performance and achieve the best possible outcomes for their school.

Our induction programme is a must for all recently appointed Governors, including Head Teacher's and Staff Governors. It can also serve as a refresher course for longer standing Governors who have not attended training recently, to update their knowledge in the light of the many new initiatives and developments in education. Our induction training covers:

- The principles of good governance
- The roles and responsibilities of Governing Boards and their main functions
- How Governing Boards should support and challenge the work of the school
- The role of Governing Boards in school self-evaluation and school improvement planning
- Governors' use of data
- The role of Governing Boards in ensuring good financial management

In addition to induction training, we recommend that schools give all new Governors information about the school they're going to be serving, including:

- A tour of the school
- An introduction to staff
- Meetings with the Head Teacher and Chair
- A meeting with the school council
- An introduction to a Governor mentor/buddy

You should also make sure that new Governors receive copies of all the important documents, like governing documents, a copy of the school's Ofsted report and the School Development Plan.

Executive Leaders are responsible for the internal organisation, management and control of schools. It is their job to implement the strategic framework established by the Board.

Governing Boards should work to support and strengthen the leadership of their Executive, and hold them to account for the day-to-day running of their school(s), including the performance management of staff.

- How Boards can focus strongly on holding their executive leader to account for exercising their professional judgement in these operational matters and all of their other duties

Governing Boards routinely monitor the school's financial stability and hold management to account for academic performance. This should be a key priority because it determines school culture and should inform how the school does everything that it does.

This session will give you the opportunity to consider:

- How would I describe my school's values and ethos?
- What contribution have Governors made to setting them?
- To what extent are they embedded in our curriculum?
- Do they influence the day to day running of the school?

The course will offer a combination of information, discussion, and self-assessment leading to action planning. It will enable you to ensure that your Governing Board is compliant with its responsibilities in relation to relevant legislation including The Equality Acts 2010 and 2019, and the Counter Terrorism and Security Act 2015.

This course will enable new Governors to better understand their role and is an opportunity for experienced Governors to reassess their role.
